

This will be a very big problem. I'm a Flight Attendant and already with the usage on the aircraft, people get very annoyed with the loud person carrying on a conversation and make negative and rude comments. If this is permitted FA will soon become the one in the middle of several arguments and trying to keep fights from happening in the air, not good! No one wants to sit next to a person who is on the phone talking while they may want to read, or sleep. This will be very annoying to the passenger who wants to get on and just relax, or who has had a death and is going home for a funeral. Why can we not just be respectful to others and do our visiting or business on our own time, not everyone else's time.
